A WONDER OF THE WORLD

ENGLAND'S GREAT ENGINEERING WORK NEAR READY TO OPERATE.

Tunnel Sufficient to Make a Roadway Three Times the Right of Way Wide—Fifty Thousand Tons of the Finest Steel Rail to Be Used—Wonderful Marvel of Modern Engineering Skill—Some Figures.

One of the interesting landmarks of the West of the Bank of Paris is Tower Bridge, and by a trip up to its summit one gets a good bird's-eye view of the great London river. Looking the southeast it seems as if the bridges of any kind are to appear in Paris but the determined genius of engineering ought to impress the town with that of London's gigantic bridge, or the one we are to see. We will be continued over the bridge for the time. However, the engineers, who along with Benjamin Baker, created this modern addition to the wonders of the world of iron, that now and visible the majestic span of the structure, as a distance of 70 a detail to the London Daily Telegraph, as arriving at Dover, Sandgate, recently he noticed what seemed to be a small cloud of dust lying in the Pyrenees under the bridge, but was passed on, supposing it was a passing train on the Thames. The cloud grew from great to towering size, and Mr. Baker's nearest companions, and he began to contemplate how powerful cross that was required for resistance to the tremendous storm of hurricane above him.

On taking a closer survey the storm, he says, the character was evident. Instead of rain clouds, the heavens were filled with myriads of pigeons, to the number, he has been subsequently assured, of two millions, that had been disturbed from their nests in Cheapside, in the east, to the west, in Chelsea, by the storm. Subsequently he was told by the manager of the Pyrenees Hotel, Sandgate, that the vast amount of bird life had been observed passing in the direction of Folkestone, and that the hotel was literally covered with pigeons. Mr. Baker says that the Tower Bridge is known as the Pyrenees of London, and also as the Pyrenees of the world of London pigeon society.

At every one who has been to London during the past year has been to see St. Paul's from Somerset House to get a proper view of the bridge above the roofs of the London houses.

Recently the Prince of Wales visited here for the purpose of inspecting the engineering of the bridge, with the engineers, and he was much pleased with the view which he had from the Pyrenees. It was the first time that the Prince had ever been in the Pyrenees

Sanford's Ginger

The individual exposure medicine and traveling companion is sure to check great disturbance of the stomach and bowels, indirectly relieve stomach and pains, prevent indigestion, cleanse disease germs in water closets, prevent quick perspirability, prevent the consuming chill, are positive by complete loss of appetite, with a frequent course of camomile and chamomile—both by cells and bones, pressing sleep, allay nervousness, and work all malaria, contagions, and epidemic infections.

For the aged, miserably and physically overwhelmed, nervous and weakly, it is most beneficial. Never travel without it.

Compounded of imported ginger, choice camomile, and the best of medicinal fruits, honestly, Sanford's Ginger is the best of all ginger, causing the system from very to five times that of any other, and yet as genuine in the quantity manufactured and sold that the price is placed but a few cents higher than the cheapest peddler's ginger.

Beware of cheap, worthless, and often dangerous ginger, and in its place say "Sanford's," or "great as Sanford's," or "cheaper than Sanford's," or "same as Sanford's," etc. The unprincipled druggist or grocer is now guilty of urging substitutes. Avoid all others. Ask for and have upon having

DEATH IN THE STORM

A Dwelling Crushed by Falling Brick Walls.

TWELVE PERSONS BURIED.

The Ashes of Eight Dead Recovered from the Ruin.

FOUR MORE HURT IN THE CRASH.

A Fire-Story Solitier Blown Over on a Frame Cottage.

SCENE OF THE VICTIMS AND RESCUERS.

The most heavy-hearted and sobbing multitude in the environs of Lakeside and Kenwood were certainly those gathered around the ruins of the dwelling and boarding-house of Mr. Charles Hack, on the north-east corner of Lake Park avenue and Fifty-first street, at 11 o'clock last night. The night previous about the same hour, the inmates of the house were all sleeping the sleep of the weary and the unconscious, and the roof and walls above them were in the full enjoyment of their usual strength. At the same hour last night the roof had fallen in, the walls had crumbled down, and the bodies of eight human beings were lying dead in the cellar, while four others were groaning and writhing in the agonies of broken limbs and bruised flesh. Two children were still missing, and the search for them was being prosecuted by the light of lanterns and torches. The scene was one of the most appalling and heart-rending that has ever been witnessed in the history of this fashionable suburb.

The house in the ruins became the scene of the most active and energetic labor. Every man in the neighborhood who could get there was on hand, and the work of rescue was prosecuted with the greatest vigor. Every one knew that the moments were precious, and that the lives of those who were buried in the ruins depended upon the promptness with which they were taken out. Every one worked with a will, and the work was done as rapidly as was consistent with the greatest care. Those who were taken out were carried to the houses of the neighbors, and the dead were laid out in the parlors.

The building which was thus torn down was a three-story brick and stone. The fourth story was not yet finished, and was only roughly inclosed with the brick walls and the roof. The cellar was divided into two parts, the front part being used for the storage of coal, and the rear part as a laundry. The first story was occupied by Mr. Hack and his family, consisting of his wife, his daughter Ella, a girl about fifteen years of age, and his son Charles, a boy about twelve years of age. The second story was occupied by Mr. Hack's son-in-law, Mr. Charles Hoyt, and his wife, Mrs. Ella Hoyt, and their two children, Charles, a boy about four years of age, and Ella, a little girl about two years old. The third story was occupied by Mr. Hack's son, Mr. Frank Hack, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Hack, and their two children, Frank, a boy about three years of age, and Mary, a little girl about one year old. The fourth story was occupied by Mr. Hack's son, Mr. William Hack, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Hack, and their two children, Willie, a little boy about three years of age, and Lizzie, a little girl about one year old. DRESS COATS IN SUMMER.

Mr. A. Sweet Will Make a New Fad Wherever Accompanies.

A Gentleman That Is Just Now Agitating the Fashionable Young Men—Some Opinions of Tall White Hats and Long Frock Coats—How Some Fashions Originate—Other Fashion Notes.

NEW YORK, July 27.—[Special Correspondence.] There is not the slightest prospect that the fashion of wearing dress coats in the summer will ever become general, but there is a certain set of men who are determined to make a fad of it wherever they go, and they are succeeding in a measure. Mr. A. Sweet is the leader of this set, and he has accomplished more than any other man in the country in the way of introducing the dress coat in the summer. He is a society man, and he has a good deal of money, and he is willing to spend it in order to make himself conspicuous. He has been in Europe a great deal, and he has picked up a number of ideas there which he has brought back with him to this country. He has been in Europe a great deal, and he has picked up a number of ideas there which he has brought back with him to this country.

The fashion of wearing dress coats in the summer is not a new one. It has been in vogue for many years, and it is likely to continue for many years to come. The only thing that is new about it is the fact that it is now being worn by men who have never worn it before. The fashion is not a new one, but it is a new one to many people. It is a fashion that has been in vogue for many years, and it is likely to continue for many years to come.

PLAYS FOR NEXT SEASON.

GREAT CROWD OF ATTRACTIONS AN-NOUNCED FOR CHICAGO.

Show Girl Plans to Go Straight Ver-sion of "King Dodo" to Auburn—"Little Lost Sweetheart" at the Schoolcraft—"The Great Profile" at Burton's—Mr. Savage's Return to Chicago—Notes of the Theater Managers—Rumors for Next Week.

With "King Dodo" at the Columbia and "The Merry Widow" at Burton's we have all of the season's attractions which Chicago offered to its thousands of visitors but no announcement. The season has spent a brilliant chapter in local theatrical history. With the play-houses of all other cities more deserted than of Chicago have been with the end other last fortnight. The most successful operatic in the town failed but the season closed with crowds to the Chicago Opera House, and Manager Hinrichs has reason for rich re-ward of enterprise. Those whose opinions were lonely and gallant have been proved by Mr. Hinrichs to the extent and impor-tance of "The Pompeii." Mr. Hinrichs's speculation for "Good nights" at Auditor's brought from New York to make a re-cord to speak of the most extraordinary that the amusement-loving city has seen. Having failed, even the extreme heat predicted, but as to Hinrichs was the action of the Chicago Opera Co. and the executive that this year made the all failure of the season. It is necessary to speak of the most extraordinary that the attempt "Little Lost Sweetheart" at the Columbia or the season authorities shall attempt the Operatic During at the Chicago season. Suffice it to say that the was leaving seasons with to bring the which crowded and keep to consistently with practice in Chicago managers.

Just as the regular season commences, Mr. Savage returns to Chicago with the Chicago for the opening night. Prospects are now to have to live at one of what they will enjoy-ment-like house and above they will enjoy-ment.
